SUPPORT SERVICES

What do I tell my child?

When someone is diagnosed with an incurable cancer, this is often their first, or second, thought. Parents and caregivers tell us they are nervous about telling their children about their incurable cancer for many reasons, mostly they want to protect their children from worry, sadness, and loss for as long as possible.

But children and young people say they need to know about their parents' health and what is going to happen in the future. They want to be included in discussions and decisions sometimes too. When they are prepared for the death of a parent or caregiver their resilience is increased and they can feel less isolated.

The Ruth Strauss Foundation offers UK-wide, free guidance and support on how to prepare children when a parent has been diagnosed with a cancer that can't be cured-

Macmillan are often the first place someone turns to when they receive an incurable cancer diagnosis. So, we would love your help in spreading the word about our service. We can send you our information pack for you to share with parents who have a child under the age of 25, with the hope they will get the support they need to start the hardest conversation they will ever have with their children.

If you would like further information on the support we offer, please see our website - <https://ruthstraussfoundation.com/>

Kate, Family Support Service Lead, can send an information pack to you, please email: kate.wells@ruthstraussfoundation.com with your full name and postal address and they will get it out to you as soon as possible.
